father, had abolished. We are told in the Bible that Manasseh did more evil in the sight of the Lord than did the heathen, whom the Lord had driven out before the children of Israel. But Ahaz King of Israel, he served Baal, a heathen god, and sacrificed to represent the sun, and worshipped the stars, and all the host of heaven. Manasseh served his idols, not only in the high places and in the groves, but in Jerusalem, and in his temple in the house of the Lord, and he beguiled of all the host of heaven and set them up in the two courts of the temple.

To all of these evil Manasseh added the practice of dealing with familiar spirits, and using the enchantments of magicians, witchcraft and wizard, paying no attention to God's prophets who were ever reminding him that all he was doing by the purpose of God would certainly bring him utter destruction of Jerusalem, and of the whole country as well.

We are told that Manasseh shed innocent blood "from one end of the city narrative, and was glad to learn that his bag had been stolen, for the gypsies had fled as soon as they saw they were discovered. "Aren't you tired of spending your life in a gypsy camp?" asked Mrs. Abston.

"Very," she answered.

"Then you will always stay with me?"

"Always," she repeated.
